Well off the beaten track and well worth visiting, the upper Mixteca is home to some of the most colorful textile villages in Mexico, rare towns where the old ways of traditional fashion are alive and well. We take you inside of these and other villages, introducing you to weavers, embroiderers, basket plaiters and paper makers. We also will visit two of the grandest churches in Mexico, long forgotten by time and recently being gloriously restored. We'll also visit a restored textile mill turned into an art school, and immerse ourselves in the thriving market center of Tlaxiaco. Far beyond the guidebooks and tourist routes, this is a journey for textile lovers and explorers curious about how people live and what's around the next corner*. (PreT-3)
